(Red Wing, MN) – Gerald Brimacombe has invested forty years in building his reputation as a fine art photographer. His work has appeared in National Geographic Traveler, Life Magazine and Audubon. After his service duty as a Marine Corps photojournalist, he moved to Minneapolis and became the chief photographer for the Minneapolis Star. His images have the unique talent of capturing the mood that the images evoke.

Red Wing Framing Gallery is proud to announce that Brimacombe's fine art photography is now part of the gallery collection. Valerie Becker commented, "Jerry's images are simply beautiful. He is the perfect complement to include at the gallery, as our mission is to feature some of the most talented regional artists."

The Brimacombe collection at Red Wing Framing Gallery will include large format images of both Midwestern and European scenery. Additional information can be found at www.geraldbrimacombe.com.
